

Bernie Sanders Has a Better Chance to Beat Trump Than Any Other Democratic Party Candidate

Time and Time Again, 2020 Polls Agree with 2016 -- If You Want to Defeat Donald Trump, Bernie is Your Choice

In 2015 Bernie Sanders continually outpolled Hillary Clinton against Donald Trump -- polls even showed that she might lose. Unfortunately, the polls were right, and we have the worst President in living memory as a result. Polls then, and now, agree, Bernie is the best candidate to face Trump for the Presidency.

Bernie is a better choice for a simple reason: voters do not want more of the same. Americans want to vote for positive change, not a the lesser of two evils. They want a future to believe in.

Universal health care, a $15 minimum wage, repeal of unfair trade laws, and free tuition at public universities are all core Bernie issues. He appeals to many of the same voters who didn't vote for Clinton -- particularly in battleground states. Four years later, we have a chance to take on Trump and beat him. But to do so, we have to give people a candidate they believe in -- someone they want to vote for, not merely ask them to vote against Trump.

Democrats cannot return to their old playbook, nor try to return to the Obama years. We need to address the most pressing issues of our time: climate change, the crisis in healthcare, growing student debt, rising inequality, the persistence -- and growth -- of racism.

- Only Bernie speaks in a clear voice about all these issues.
- Only Bernie has the record of consistent support for popular ideas like Medicare for All.
- Only Bernie has what it takes to offer a real alternative to those who feel left behind by both Republicans and Democrats.

Bernie Can't Do It Alone

If you are an American citizen and live overseas, you can vote in the Democrats Abroad Global Presidential Primary on Super Tuesday. Four years ago, Bernie took 69% of the vote. The majority of delegates sent by Democrats Abroad to the Democratic National Convention voted for Bernie.

We can do this again. But we need your help to to ensure that Donald Trump is not re-elected. Join us!
